Urban Immersion is an annual summer program that introduces incoming students to the principles of critical service-learning and to the City of Houston. The program is planned and implemented by a team of undergraduate coordinators in partnership with local neighborhood leaders and community organizations and is based in the three core principles of education, service, and reflection.

Participants have the opportunity to explore the city and learn about the amazing communities that define Houston’s past, present and future while engaging in hands-on service with fellow community members. They have the added advantage of meeting a group of like-minded classmates and Rice faculty and staff before the first semester begins!
